THE LAST OF THE INDIANS.

The surrender of the most powerful of the Caciques in the south, "Namuncurá," to Commander Belisle is an event of no ordinary importance in a country like this, that for a quarter of a century has suffered so much from the Indian. Five years ago had this news reached the city we should have had rockets going up and the town illuminated to celebrate so glorious a triumph but now-a-days; we hear so little of the Indians save at some outlandish point in the Gran Chaco or in the parish of Nahuel-Huapi or Chupat, that few of us give the savage a thought—yet we cannot forget that it is hardly a year since the unfortunate Mr. McClymont was murdered by the Indians outside of Trenque-Lauquen.

In point of fact President Roca has settled for us all the Indian difficulty, and Belisle's telegram, which we give hereunder, is but a necessary sequence to the famous Rio Negro expedition by General Roca. The surrender of Namuncurá is the close of our Indian campaign in the south, and the President may now in all sincerity say there are no more Indians, since the only chief or cacique that now holds out is one of infinitely less fame and prestige "Inacayal," who is known to be wandering about with scarcely a follower in the open Pampa, some fifty to 100 leagues south of the Rio Negro, and whose surrender we may now at any moment expect to hear of, since the "Cid" of the Pampa, Namuncurá, has surrendered.

The Indians, however, are still very troublesome in the distant points of the Gran Chaco, and we know for a fact that they are always hovering about the camps at the back of the Alexandra Colony, and in the neighbourhood of the Langworthy colony. The Minister of War is preparing an expedition to move the frontier line in this part of the Chaco some hundreds of leagues farther out, and we all hope to see him as successful up there as he has been in the far South.

Even so late as last year, the Indians made inroads in the neighbourhood of Pringles, on the Rio Negro, and had the settlers out there in great alarm, as the Rio Negro line at that point was much exposed; the troops having been moved out to Choel-e-choel and Roca. General Winter, Governor of the country down there, is now, however, the Commander-in-Chief of the forces of the Rio Negro, and he will now be able to place troops at certain exposed points which for the last two years, in spite of all his exertions, were left unprotected.

The splendid valleys and 'cañadones' south of the Rio Negro are to this hour deserted through fear of the Indians, but the people who know well the value of those lands will now stock and settle them, since Namuncurá, the most terrible of all the Southern Indian Chiefs, has surrendered. There are so few of our readers who know anything of the country down there, that very little attention will be paid to this glorious telegram of Belisle's, but there are hundreds of families in the Rio Negro valley who will rejoice at the news, and whose properties may be said to improve 50 per cent in value on the surrender of this dread chief with all his warriors and 'chusma.'

We congratulate the country on the telegram, and hope that soon the wires will flash the news of the surrender of Inacayal, who may be well termed the "Last of the Mohicans."

Paso Indio, March 23rd.

To the Minister of War,

The Cacique Namuncurá and 9 captains, 137 warriors and 185 Indian families, have abandoned their savage life and submitted to the laws and civilization of our country. This is a new step—and will prove the grand finale of the conquest of the desert. I have great pleasure in sending you the glorious news, and, as an affectionate subaltern, congratulate Your Excellency on it.

Paul C. Belisle.

THE STORM.

The prolonged heat, and perhaps our resplendent sunsets may have something to do with the temporada of wet, sunshiny, blustering weather that ushers in to us the glorious autumn. For the last three days the port of Buenos Aires, the Outer and Inner Roads, have presented an appearance not for many years witnessed; the waves in the river beat as high as on the rocky headlands of Point Rubio or Punta Rasa, and the swell of the ocean, added to the torrents of rain, has plunged once more the Boca and its environs into one scene of watery waste, only rivalled in the epoch long past of the Hopkins storm, when people sailed up the Calle Larga, Barracas, in rowboats, merchants came in canoes as far as the foot of Horne's hill, and pianos, and dining tables floated down that historic street called Admiral Brown.

That we are in for a tremendously wet winter is the opinion of all the Germans in town; and as the Germans are supposed to know more than anyone else on such matters, except Professor Gould, we advise all our subscribers in the low, flat south camps to take timely warning and secure some high, dry camp in the north, where their stock will be secure from drowning. The Government drainage works may possibly meet the difficulty, but it would be well to see to those vast drainage works which have cost the estancieros so much increased taxation. Last year they were not up to the mark, and this year "quien sabe?"

The heat on Sunday last, for this time of the year, was so excessive that many of the 'patrones' of small craft, lighters, whaleboats and tugs, fearing a storm, left their anchorage and put for safety into the Tigre, San Fernando, the Boca, etc. Wise men, their prudence saved their ships, whilst the improvident mariners who put their trust in their anchors, cables, &c., witnessed all manner of troubles and in many cases the loss of their vessels. All the foreign steamers in port posted to sail on Monday postponed their sailing to Tuesday; but on Tuesday morning at peep of day down came another torrent of rain, and the wind blew as if we were all down in Bahia Blanca. The sun shone gloriously on Tuesday and the passengers for Europe came to the mole-head, but the swell of the river was such that even the very tug boat and small steamer men refused to put off. The Minerva's passengers from Montevideo had an awful time of it coming ashore on Tuesday morning, most of them passengers travelling for pleasure and returning from the charming Pocitos baths. But such travelling for pleasure! Ladies fainting, children crying, and strong men saying their prayers. Bang, bang went the Port Captain's 'falua' against the head of the old mole, and splash, splash came the waves on the unfortunate Minho's mail bags. Such a scene of newspaper, letter and Post-office desolation was enough to crack the heart of old Neptune himself; though the fact stands that the god never posted a letter in his life and did not even know how to write. Right in the face of this postal sorrow the pilot-boat Tiger was all but run down by the Sarah—and all the coffee and sugar on board the lighter Navegador was sent to Davy Jones's locker by the patacho Fortuna that was swept from her anchorage and would ere this be up in Corrientes, but that she fell foul of the Navegador. The Portuguese patacho Fortuna had a most desperate time of it; she rode quietly at anchor in front of the Boca Canal and had two anchors down, but the wind and the sea and the swell were too much for twenty anchors; she was borne away on the crest of the waves and swept up beyond the Catalinas mole, when crash! crash! and she was on the Pobre Diablo toscas. We doubt if she will get off; she was preparing to leave for Fray Bentos to load meat or hides or extract when the storm came on; now they may make an "extractum carnis" of her hull.

At day break on Monday morning the dear old Paseo Julio was lined with beachcombers and spectators, who watched with surpassing interest the mad waves breaking on the old washerwomen's shore. The river seemed mad with rage, and many thought that if the South-Easter continued, there would be whale-boats at the Central Station before night, and pianos and sofas floating about in the Alvear palace that overlooks the beach. Half the small craft in the offing had their flags half mast down asking for help; but not even old Waterford, if he rose from his grave, would have dared to put off in a whaleboat in such a sea. Captain Mihanovich, who owns all the Riachuelo tug steamers, ordered them up to give relief, and many of these small coastwise sailing craft owe their safety to the timely help afforded them by the tug steamers. The steamer Enriqueta, towed a "balandra" from the Catalinas mole to the Riachuelo, where she got in safety. The steamer Happy Hope towed into the Boca the damaged iron pilot-boat Navegador. The schooner "Modest Mother," that also suffered in the Fortuna collision, was finally towed into the Boca by the little steamer the "Policeman" (Vigilante), but after much-a-do, as the stupid sailors on board the Modest Mother refused to allow the tug to take her without an order from the Captain, who was on shore at the time; finally the Policeman saved the schooner. The pilotboat Tigre had to throw part of her cargo overboard, and at the mole head, owing to being run into by the Sarah. In the midst of the storm and in the glare of the most resplendent sunset, the old Pontoon Vigilante went down in the Boca channel, and the boiling waves of the river dashed madly over the last record of our port neglect. This ancient pontoon, in days long over, was called the "Young Lady" Nina, sold to the Government, and ever since anchored as the guard-ship. She was at one time the Lightship at Point Indio, but in a storm the light was put out and then she was sent to the Tigre as a coal hulk where she was repaired; the wreck will now have to be blown up by a torpedo, as it blocks the channel.

The little steamer Katey Darling, in which we were once nearly drowned, towed into the Riachuelo the pilot boat Tigre, and saved her.

The pilot boat Peru went down at the Catalinas mole. pipes of wine floated ashore, and it is feared that she will prove a total loss. The national cutter Anita was rescued by Port Captain's boat going off to her and putting down another anchor.

The weather still continues blowing, hot, and sticky, and in the opinion of the Paseo Julio men we have not yet seen the end of this great autumnal storm.

EXPLOSIVE ATTEMPTS AGAINST LONDON RAILWAY STATIONS.

London, March 1st

The terminus of the London, Brighton, and South Coast and of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railways at Victoria, Pimlico, was on Tuesday morning the scene of a disastrous explosion. The booking-office, waiting rooms, and luggage depository of the first-named company were blown into the air, and a good deal of glass in neighbouring places was shattered. Two persons were injured, but the injuries were not caused by the explosion itself. There is but too much reason to suppose that outrage mongers are still at work in London.

The explosion occurred at three minutes past 1 o'clock in the morning, a fact shown by the stoppage of three clocks at that time. The last trains from London-bridge, Clapham Junction, and Ludgate-hill had discharged their passengers at the twin station, and the night duty men had entered upon their work of guarding the station by seeing to the gas and locking the doors, when a loud explosion shook the central part of the series of straggling buildings. This was followed by the crashing of the roof, the fall of glass in every direction, and cries of alarm in the neighbourhood. Several persons had narrow escapes. A shunter was crossing the cab enclosure when he was suddenly lifted into the air and thrown to the ground. A sergeant of police on duty near the station was hurled into a doorway. The darkness at Victoria Station between 1 and 4 a.m., when there is no traffic through the station, was speedily dispelled by fire from the broken gas-pipes, which threatened to complete the work of destruction. Fortunately, however, it is one of the duties of the night men to have fire hoses screwed on to the mains in readiness for any outbreak; and these played upon the flames and kept them in check until the arrival of the Brigade. Superintendent Palmer had heard the explosion, and immediately came to ascertain its cause. By this time the flames were making headway, and it was found necessary to get a strong extinguishing force to work. Little delay had occurred, however, for two of the private hydrants fitted up in the station had kept down the flames, and Superintendent Palmer's men from the brigade station in Victoria-street, the one nearest the railway station, completed the work. The firemen were allowed to do no more—that is to say, they were not permitted to touch the ruins, in order that there might be no disturbance of the wrecked offices until they were seen by experts at daylight. Superintendent Hambling, of the B division of police, placed a cordon of police round the spot, and only persons who had duty there were allowed within the barricades.

At daylight the throngs of people who crowded the stations could witness in the roofless offices the principal effects of the explosion. The main line offices of the London and Brighton Company—the words "main line" are used to distinguish this part of the station from the station for the suburban lines to the west, and from the London, Chatham, and Dover station adjoining, on the south—had no upper stories. They were about 50 ft. high, and had a glass and slate roof. Near the door of the station was the flight of steps leading to the subway or passage to the District Railway. In the Victoria Station yard, facing the Brighton Company's station, is a glass covered way, supported by iron pillars. The property destroyed included a waiting room, a booking office, and a luggage depository office (called a cloak room), covering in all a space of about 45 ft. square. The wainscotting of the several offices and rooms was knocked into one, and the explosive force—which was, perhaps, not half so great as that used at the Local Government Board's offices last March, or in volume so much as that placed in Playhouse-yard the same night—was sufficient to tear down the lath and plaster structure of this part of Victoria Station. Colonel Sir Edmund Henderson, Colonel Pearson, Mr. Superintendent Williamson, Colonel Majendie, Colonel Ford, and Captain Shaw, C.B., were early on the spot, and had an interview with Mr Knight, the general manager, and Mr Wright and Mr Richardson, officials of the line. The wrecked premises were then carefully photographed from different points of view to show how the wreckage had fallen, and no detail, however trifling it might seem, was neglected. The pencil of the artist was also brought into play to afford evidence in future of the work of the explosive. Superintendent Williamson, Colonel Majendie, and Colonel Fort put questions as to the contents of the cloak room, as well as the parcels last deposited there. Meanwhile a clearage in part was made of the wreckage, so that the effect of the explosion in the immediate neighbourhood of the suspected "infernal machine" might be noted. In the course of the investigations, which were conducted as an" inquiry of the first instance" as taken on some parts of the Continent, a man named Thomas, a cloak room porter on the main line side, was brought in. He described the luggage which came into the cloak room on the previous night. It included a package very heavy for its size, and handled with great care by the person who left it. Of this person he gave some account. The package in question, brown in colour, must have been about 15 inches in length, a foot broad, and a foot deep. Moreover, the man gave in a canvas-covered portmanteau of what the witness thought was a foreign make. This was larger and longer than the first one mentioned, but was relatively lighter in weight.

The other articles deposited by this man, the witness thought, were two boxes. On taking up the heavy small bag he was told by the man to be very careful about it. The witness put the other parcels on the top of it. The passenger, or presumed passenger, requested him not to do so, but to put them on the floor separately but close together. The witness subsequently set other luggage on the top of these articles, and left the cloak-room secure and all right at 12 o'clock. It was about half-past 8 when the luggage was delivered. He did not know from which line it came. It was followed by that of some sailors who were going to Liverpool. Inquiries were then set on foot to ascertain what luggage was brought from the other lines on the previous night to this cloak-room.

Colonel Majendie and Colonel Ford, who were joined by Sir Frederick Abel, then proceeded to the spot where the lumbermen were removing the wreckage. The building material cleared away; the men came to piles of all sorts of luggage, and it was soon made obvious that the explosive material had been concealed under some part of the mass. All the rubbish was turned over as the articles of luggage were taken out, and in the destroyed things were found some curiously shaped tins, about 14 inches long, hexagonal in shape, and about nine inches in circumference. These contained some vegetable substances like sawdust, and they had had each small funnels. Colonel Majendie ordered these to be saved, as well as portions of bottles found wrapped in zinc, and pieces of metal which had been torn asunder by a violent wrench. After many hours' work the flooring was reached, and then the full effects of the explosion downwards were seen. There are no underground rooms to the station at this part, and the flooring was laid upon heavy beams for rafters. The explosion had completely smashed up all the material within the immediate reach of its force, and even a great beam was cracked; while the flash of the explosive was seen upon the party wall which is between the two stations.

With regard to the character of the explosion the experts speedily came to one conclusion, and that of a negative character. They were certain, Colonel Majendie, Colonel Ford, and Professor Sir Frederick Abel said, that the explosion was not due to an accumulation of gas, and it is apparent, from the investigations being made, that they entertained no doubt as to its being due to "unlawful explosives," apparently to some form of nitro-glycerine compounds.

Late on Wednesday night a quantity of dynamite was found in the cloak-room of the Charing-cross terminus of the South-Eastern Railway. It was sufficient, notwithstanding the solidity of the building around it, to have demolished a large portion of the station premises, and to have done considerable damage to the adjacent property.

The clerk in charge of the cloak-room, Newman, superintends a staff of four porters. He and one of his assistants usually leave work at 8.45, the others remaining until the station is closed for the night. On Tuesday night, alarmed at the Victoria Station explosion, Newman gave orders to his subordinates to make an unusually careful scrutiny of all articles deposited before the place was left at night, and in order to satisfy himself that all was right that evening, he inspected every package himself. He even opened some which had a suspicious appearance. The portmanteau subsequently found to contain the dynamite was in the room at the time this examination was made. Newman states that it was one of the articles he took down and inspected. Neither its weight nor its appearance excited suspicion, it being well-worn and little heavier than other packages of a similar size. On Wednesday evening an inspection was made by Chamberlain, one of the assistants, at 11.45. His day's work was by this time practically over, and he had therefore more leisure to make a careful examination. When he came to the portmanteau abovementioned, he was struck by the fact that it had not been taken away since the previous evening, and, in accordance with his instructions for dealing with any suspicious packages, he proceeded to open it and examine its contents. Inside the portmanteau, which was covered with black American leather, and which measured 2ft. by 14in., he found several suspicious-looking packets, wrapped up in pink-coloured paper. Beside these was a square tin case; underneath were an old pair of black trousers, with a pocket on the hip, of American make, to which was attached a very old pair of braces, mended with cord. In the other compartment of the black bag was part of an old coat, decidedly of an American pattern. No papers of any description were in the pockets or elsewhere. Chamberlain, instantly suspecting that the bag contained some explosive, took the tin box to the end of the arrival platform, which runs out to Hungerford-bridge over the Thames, and which was an open and safe place to inspect. He then brought the packages out to the same place, informing Police-sergeant Middleton, who was in charge of Charing-cross Railway Station, of his discovery. Carefully opening the packages, they found in them 45 charges of dynamite, in small blocks of about an inch and a-half square. One packet was somewhat larger than the others, in which they found embedded seven cartridges without bullets, but seeminyly loaded with explosive matter. Sergeant Middleton then opened the tin case, out of which projected a hammer—or, as Col. Majendie, Her Majesty's Inspector of Explosives, describes it, a "barrel"—and found it contained a clock of rude construction, which had stopped exactly at 3 minutes past 4 o'clock. Scotland-yard was at once apprised of the discovery, and, Colonel Majendie having been communicated with, had the portmanteau taken down to Woolwich Arsenal in a cab, by Inspector Husted and Sergeant Middleton. Colonel Majendie's examination revealed the fact that inside the portmanteau was a small parcel, the cover being of plain, unprinted paper tied with a string. Around this were the remains of an old coat split in two up the back, and evidently used for padding. Attached to it was an apparatus consisting of a clockwork arrangement attached to the trigger of a small pistol. Inside the parcel were a number of cakes, which Colonel Majendie, after tasting and testing one of them, directed should be taken to the Home Office magazine. The clock and pistol, with a percussion fuse inserted in the barrel for the purpose of detonating the charge, he took into his own possession. The clock was a small and ordinary one of American make. It had at one time been fitted with an alarm, but this had been removed and the striking arrangement adopted to a sinister purpose. The metal sides of the clock are torn off and bent down to give access to the works, and the pistol, which had the stock removed, is bound fast to the works by copper wire. The trigger strikes on a nipple fixed in the central axis of the barrel, and against this had been fixed a long percussion fuse charged with fulminate of mercury or some such powerful detonator. The failure of the plot was due to the fact that the fuse had been inaccurately adjusted and the striker had missed the mark by the merest fraction of space.

Whether the explosion was timed to occur at 3 minutes past 4 or earlier is a matter of conjecture, as the clock may have continued running after the hammer fell. It has been absolutely ascertained that the bag was deposited shortly before 7 o'clock on Monday evening. The clock was set to go in any position, and therefore, there was no need for the dynamitard to give instructions—which he did not—for the bag to be placed on any particular side. During the two days that the bag has been in the cloak-room it has been frequently moved to make room for other parcels.

A similar package was discovered at the Parcels Office of the Great Western Station at Paddington, the clock-work machinery in that case also having failed to explode the detonators. The machinery and dynamite were of American manufacture.

SURRENDER OF TOKAR.

Suakin, Feb. 22.

Tokar has surrendered to the rebels. Five soldiers have come in, who state that the rebels kept up a heavy fire from Krupp guns and rifles for several days, and many soldiers in the town were killed. At last, being unable to defend the works any longer, the Governor sent emissaries on Tuesday to confer with the rebels and to make terms for a surrender. On Wednesday Adjutant-Major Jacomb Effendi went out, accompanied by Macaur Bey, the Governor of the town. On their return they announced that the soldiers must give up their arms. There was a great commotion among the men, many of whom refused to abandon all hope of future resistance. Finally, however, the surrender was arranged on the terms demanded by the rebels. During the night many of the soldiers escaped, passing through the rebel lines. These five men are the first who have arrived, but they report that others are straggling on the road hither. Tokar was finally given up yesterday.

From a further conversation with the five fugitive soldiers and the two Hadendowa spies who were in the rebel camp at the time when 150 soldiers visited it, I gather the following details:—

On Tuesday Said Khameesa, a merchant of Tokar, who had been imprisoned by the authorities, was released and went to the rebel camp. He was well received there, returned, and made overtures to the garrison, bringing an invitation to the officers to feast with the rebels next day.

On Wednesday the officers went out to the besiegers, became excellent friends with them, received many presents, and returned from the camp accompanied by 100 of the rebels, thus showing that the surrender was quite decided upon. There were three Greeks in Tokar—one a woman—and these became Moslems. At one time there had been five, but two had been killed in the sortie made at the time of the battle of El Teb.

One officer only wanted to fight, and tried to gather the soldiers round him, but was overruled by his seniors, who, mostly former adherents of Arabi, preferred ceding the town to Moslem rebels to being succoured by Christians. During the night the soldiers who were still stanch escaped, journeying by night and hiding by daytime, without water, and finally arrived here.

The town was to be surrendered on Thursday by Sheikh Said Abu Bekr, formerly an inhabitant of Suakin. There was no valid reason for the surrender, there being an abundance of provisions, with 45,000 rounds of rifle ammunition. The artillery ammunition was short, only 22 rounds per gun. The garrison numbered 300.

The authorities knew that the English were coming; they had answered our last two letters, and had heard the Carysfort fire. It is true that the rebels had shelled the town with six guns for five days, and had kept up a heavy rifle fire day and night, but only two men of the garrison had been killed and twelve wounded in consequence.

The rebels are now assembling in great force on the Trinkitat route. It is not likely that the garrison will be massacred, as Osman Digma wants proselytes.

There is bad news from Massowah. It is said that the insurrection is spreading everywhere among the Government officials.

Feb. 24, 5 p.m.

The news regarding Tokar is confirmed from all sides. The fugitive soldiers reached Trinkitat on the same day and repeated the story, but were not believed. A spy arrived here this morning from Osman Digma's camp at Tamanieb, stating that messengers had arrived there from Sheikh Kheder Ali, at Tokar, announcing the cession of the town and describing the banquet. He stated also that the Sheikh, having found a spy in the camp, cut off his hand and suspended it round his neck.

Since the news of the fall of Tokar reached here numerous natives, professedly members of friendly tribes, continue to arrive and inspect the town, which is at the mercy of Osman Digma, being nearly stripped of its defenders. Fourteen hundred troops remain, of whom 450 defend the outer redoubt. The remainder are inadequate for the defence of the main intrenchment, in which formerly 700 men defended the right flank alone. In the forts are the marines and sailors, under orders to start for Trinkitat.

In the event of an attack, the native troops are not to be depended upon. With the example of the Tokar garrison before them, they would probably side with the rebels against the Europeans, and sack the town.

The Trinkitat expedition is now without an object. If it is desired to fight, why should not our soldiers fight here, instead of leaving Suakin exposed, in charge of untrustworthy troops.

Major-General Graham and Baker Pasha are at Trinkitat; Rear-Admiral Hewett has returned here. Major Giles, who is attached to the 10th Hussars, has left. All the English troops have gone. Mr. Bewley Chief of Police, attached to the transport, has left the police without an officer. Souakin is in a disorganized condition, favourable to the designs of the rebels. Captain Hallam Parr commands the troops; Mr. Brewster being the only capable civilian.

Feb. 25.

An exploring party of our men met this morning a body of some 2,000 rebels, partly mounted on camels, at about three miles distance from the trenches. The rebels charged, and our party was obliged hastily to retire.

The Dryad arrived at Suakin to-day; and will go to Trinkitat, to embark the families of the soldiers landed by the Jumna, and take them home.

To-night the ships will open fire with a view to keep the rebels at a distance.

There is some talk in the Bazaar, to the effect that the Egyptian and Soudanese soldiers will, in case of an attack, join the rebels.

Suakin, Feb. 27.

The state of the town is at present rather better, on account of the precautions which have been taken. Half a battalion of the Beringers, who, after refusing to go on duty, refused to surrender their arms, will embark for Suez to-morrow. The remainder of Baker Pasha's European officers are also leaving. The convicts should be sent back.

Some of the friendly tribes were fighting Osman Digma's people this afternoon at a point some seven miles to the north of this town; the result being unknown. A few of the former, however, have cut their way through the enemy, and say that they are willing to join the English authorities, and fight Osman Digma, but that they will not fight for the Egyptian officials. They can bring 5,000 men into the field; and only demand our protection—which, till now, has not been granted.

The loss of the rebels in the battle with Baker Pasha's force was 1,300 men.

Dissensions exist everywhere in the ranks of the enemy. The highest estimate of the rebel force round Tokar is 7,000 men.

The British troops have not yet advanced.

LATEST FROM BRAZIL.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

Rio de Janeiro, March 15.

The 14th was the natal anniversary of that most estimable lady, the Empress, and her reception in the city palace was thronged by the many, foreigners as well as Brazilians, who avail themselves of such auspicious opportunities for personal testimony of the respect she inspires.

Monsenhor Pedro Peixoto de Abreu e Lima has resigned the confessorship of H.I. Majesty, because the Emperor will not interfere to prevent the enforced sale of the monastic realty.

Notwithstanding the protests in all tones, from supplication to menace, which daily fill about a page of the Jornal do Commercio, greatly to the profit of its proprietor, the commission for the sale of the monastic realty continues labouring to prepare for bringing it to sale, but, it must be confessed, with little progress before the monastic non possumus to the demand for information.

The sanitary commissions are exhibiting great activity in their sanitary examinations and measures in regard to courts, lodging-houses, eating-houses, shops, &c., and by a decree, dated the 8th inst., they have also been charged with the inspection of private houses and other premises not included in their previous jurisdiction, admission, therein, however, being obligatory only upon an express authorization conceded by the Minister of the Empire, in view of allegations and proofs presented to him.

The mortality in Rio in February was 849, 134 from yellow fever, 56 from other fevers, 154 from consumption. Brazilians 512, foreigners 314, unknown 18, free 863, slaves 31; males 548, females 342, undeclared 4. Compared with February, 1883 there was a decrease of 151, although in 1884 the month was a day longer.

From March 1st to the 11th the mortality from yellow fever was 53.

The arrivals of 3d class passengers in Rio during February were 1,120—777 of them Portuguese, 171 Italians. 83 Spaniards, 51 Germans, 18 Austrians, 9 Swiss, 6 Americans, 4 French, 1 English. 495 went to the provinces, 238 to S. Paulo: 622 3d-class passengers left for abroad.

The break of traffic at the 259th kilometer of the D. Pedro II. Railway still exists, and owing to the prevalence of rains is likely to continue some days longer. Some other falls of earth have occurred, but not serious enough to cause more than interruptions of a few hours. The telegraph was restored on the 10th.

The heavy rains in Pará interrupted the railway this week in two places and flooded a part of Morretes, and the swelling of the rivers and the bad state of the roads had prevented repairs.

At the Ponta da Arco establishment, at Nitherohy, a wooden steamer is now building for the Companhia de Navagação de S. Joao da Barra e Campos. She is to be named the "Corangola," and will be 190 feet long, 28 feet beam, 12 feet hold, draw 8 feet when laden, and have the speed of twelve miles an hour The owners will be entitled to $50 per ton bounty.

The collisions between the police and the Imperial marinheiros have been on a rather large scale of late, and as, besides the police swords and the seamen's knives, dirks and razors, stones have been freely used, they are not always bloodless. In an engagement on the 10th about 20 seamen were engaged in the neighbourhood of the Arsinal de Marinha, but the inspector sent out a force to assist the police, and ten of the marinheiros were captured.

Brigadier Alexandro Augusto Frias died on the 9th instant. He had served with much gallantry in the Paraguayan war, and besides the medals for it, was Dignitary of the Order of the Rose and Knight, of those of Aviz, Christ and the Cross.

At Ouro Preto the Mineiro poet Bernardo Joaquim da Silva Guimaraez, died on the 9th instant, at the age of 57

The condition of the back regions of the north-eastern provinces is still very unsatisfactory, the rains of the season having almost totally failed to appear as yet, and from the absence of pasturage, and even water, a great number of cattle have already perished. Should the rains be delayed much longer, there must also be a total failure of crops over a large area.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

"Postponed" was the order of the day on Tuesday for everything—Races, Athletic Sports, High Life pic-nic, sailing of mail, etc. The Clerk awoke in a roaring humour, but smoothed his wrinkled front about noon. We give full particulars of the storm in another column. People cannot understand the present weather "at all at all." Such heat as yesterday's at the end of March is quite phenomenal.

The Galileo's mails are to March 1st. The explosions in London were the absorbing theme all over the United Kingdom when she sailed—even the Mahdi was forgotten.

The Massenet French Opera Company landed yesterday and will make their debut at the Opera House on 1st April.

We have received the following from Rosario:—

"Heavy rain-storm yesterday at Carcarañia. Several telegraph posts blown down, also several houses completely dismantled. No rain or storm in Cañada de Gomez.

"Lord Dormer and Mr Callan, M.P., in town; staying at Keenan's Hotel. Mr C. reports the Chaco land splendid. He asked me did I think this climate suitable for Irish emigrants. I replied that Irishmen would never die here without the help of caña. Mr. Bald Lord Dormer's private secretary, is attracting crowds by wearing knickerbockers and a Scotch cap."

The seizure of Lottery tickets on Saturday has opened the public eye to the manner in which it is so outrageously swindled. The Lottery in the present case is called San Carlos, and when the police seized the tickets they found the Extract for the drawing on the 29th inst. already made, but not even one of the numbers for sale, which were seized, was in it! This is the most barefaced swindle as yet discovered, but there are others just as bad. To only way to escape being plundered is to stick to the Capital or Montevidean Lottery.

The postponed races will come off next Sunday at Palermo—wives and weather permitting.

Mr. Anthony Rodriguez has made the Lord Mayor a present of a toy steamer, built by himself, for Alvear Lake at the Retiro.

The storm did not do so much damage at La Plata as everybody expected, but it turned the place into a sea of mud. The railway station was inundated, and a couple of wooden shee. bangs were blown down. The local organ El Dia is full of fun: It calls the new capital of the province "nuestra gran ciudad." What sarcasm!

A Belgian named Jean Bour was lately foully murdered at Las Flores. His corpse was found in the camp, half eaten by rats and foul birds.

The ridiculous attempt to haul a ship through the streets of Montevideo has ended as everybody expected. She has broken in two and now lies a complete wreck, stopping the traffic, and showing what a pack of asses all those engaged in the business are. The vessel cost a lot of money which has now gone to the dogs.

There was another jollification last Saturday on board the Admiral Brown. Scarcely a week passes that there is not a feed, or a hop, or a lunch, or some festivity on board this vessel Her officers and men would be far better employed on some active service. They know how to eat and drink and dance and flirt, but seem to have quite too easy times of it in a professional way. Why not get up a sham fight in the open river, or anything to let the public see that the officers and crew are up to their work.

The Fair at Dolores was most successfully opened on Saturday last. The whole town was be-flagged, and the people made a day of it. The "Palace" in which the Fair is held is a very creditable structure for a camp town, 300 metres long and of good width. It and the ground it stands on cost $700,000 m/c. Bulls, cows, sheep, horses, pigs, machinery etc., are on view, the principal exhibitors being Messrs. Fernando Brunkhorst (splendid German sheep and rams); Joe Ortega; John Madariaga; Martin Claudio; Roach & Co.; James Pirovano; Charles Debaexier; Los Ingleses and El Basque estancias and others. Messrs. Drysdale and Co. and Lanus of this city show splendid agricultural machinery. In spite of the Fair, Dolores is in a dolorous condition. Half the houses in the place are unlet; the population was 10,000 in 1876, and is now only 3,500. Two-storey houses that were rented then at $4,000 per month can now be had at $900, or less. When the law courts move to La Plata Dolores must inevitably burst up for good.

The Nacional announces without even a sigh a piece of news that has brought buckets of tears from our eyes. Our "inolvidable" colleague El Plata has burst up, and the iron hand of the tipstaff clapped the official seal on its doors yesterday. So end all the patriotism, poetry and palaver of

ON 'CHANGE.

March 26th, 1884.

Cedulas A	100
Cedulas E	88
Cedulas F	83
National Bank Shares....	127⅛

The Bolsa opened this morning dull for Cedulas, but firm for Bank Shares. Some Roads and Bridges 8 o/o stock were sold at par, which shows how tight money is in certain quarters, formerly this stock was at 5 o/o premium. Cedulas A, also 8 o/o, were done at par, and the new Series F, notwithstanding all the help afforded last week, have tumbled again to 83. They say on 'Change that the Cedula King has taken up one million pats to carry Cedulas at the end of the month, and of course, if this be so, we shall see no fall for the liquidations, on the contrary, the bulls say that 89 will be the closing price for the end of the month.

National Bank Shares opened very hard at 127¼ and rose to 128, but they fell off afterwards and closed dull at 127⅛, and for the end of April at 129¼.

The letters from Europe per Minho and Galileo are all most favorable to the R. Plate at all the ports the number of passengers and amount of cargo offering for the R. Plate, prove that the country is attracting extraordinary attention in every circle, and very influential and well to do people may be expected out in the steamers to have a look at the country.

The following were the sales at the ring during official hours:—

Cedulas—
For cash A 2,350 at 100
For cash E 6,000 at 88
For March. 31st E 30,000 at 88⅛-¼
For April 30th E 80,000 at 88¼
For cash F 28,600 at 83¼-83
Sales, 146,950
National Bank Shares—
For March 31st 1,250 at 127¾-128-127⅞-¾-½ to 127⅞
For April 30th 750 at 129½-¾
Sales, 2,000
Roads and Bridges—
For cash 4,000 at 100

The mails in to-day announce heavy shipments of gold from New York to the London market, and money in London much easier. All Argentine stocks at full quotations, which may be accepted as good news for our impending Argentine loans.

Mr Peters, of London, who is at present out on a visit to the Plate, leaves in the morning for Fray Bentos to see the Liebig factory. We hope before he returns that he will take a run out to the estancias and have a look at our camps.

The schooner Rio Negro from Patagones entered to-day full of cargo, she brings letters and mails from there. It rained splendidly down there since the 12th inst., and the camps are beautiful and stock fat. The surrender of Namuncura, it is thought, will be followed by the surrender of Shailueque, and this will close the Indian chapter in the Rio Negro valley. Governor Winter has gone up to head-quarters at Pueblo Roca Numerous troops of cattle have arrived at Rio Negro from Bahia Blanca, and new settlers are starting along the river at all points.

We have received from New Zealand, by the mail, The Press, dated Christchurch, Feb. 23, 1884, which gives the following that will doubtless much interest this market:—

"Sheep for South America.—Mr. D. Hay-Barclay, well known as a judge of wool and sheep, leaves to-day by the ss. Doric for the Argentine Republic with some merino rams from Mr. Jos. Pearson's Burnt Hill flock, so successful as prize-takers at our shows. The La Plata territory has now some eighty millions of merino sheep, mostly of a low grade. The flock-owners of that part of the world are, it is understood, desirous of improving the type of their wool, and it is hoped that Mr. Barclay will be successful in his new venture. A large trade in stud sheep between this country and that country might be opened up, now that there is direct steam communication with Rio."

Our active colleague El Diario gives the following news, which we conceive of sufficient importance to reproduce:—

The saladero of Harriague, Salto, B.O., has stopped killing, owing to bad beef news from Cuba.

600 squares land, 795$ per square.
Poblaciones, &c, 47,000$
Quints, 3,100 $
Yeguas, mestizas, 'al corte,' 106$
Do criollas, 68$

The statutes of the new Land Company, called the 'Buena Esperanza, have been approved by the Judge—104 leagues of land in San Luis; a Rotterdam company.

The machinery for a new sugar factory in Santiago del Estero has just been despatched free of duty.

The Chata, Buffon, with a cargo of produce has proved a total loss within 2 leagues of Rosario.

The damage caused in the city of La Plata has been exaggerated; some few of the buildings have suffered, but not to the extent alleged, nor have all the wooden houses been blown into the river as rumoured.

To-day at 2 o'clock Mr. Mallmann and family left for Europe; they were accompanied by a numerous circle of friends, and we all hope to see Mr. Mallmann and family back soon again in the Plate where their absence will be much felt.

At afterhours the Bolsa was crowded with visitors, and in the liquidation room there was a great hubbub in stocks and shares. The market rules without change, National Bank Shares at 127¼ buyers, and Cedulas at 88¼-½. We heard of an investor this afternoon who sold 80,000 Cedulas E at 88¼, and bought 80,000 Series F at 83, making by the change of the stock 4,000 pats.

Discount brokers report a very large business done to-day, and fully TWO MILLION PATS., in discounts done to-day which shows the immense business going on in this line.

The sale of a piece of property in the Boca Potreros at the rate of $40 % per square vara is reported. This property owing to the opening of the proposed street to the Deposits, is rising rapidly in value.

At the meeting of the Camara Sindical of the Bolsa to-day, Messrs. Acevedo, Borzone and J. E. Perez were admitted as 'socios,' and Mr. Alkains as broker. Mr. Molfini has applied for admission.

Mr. J. C. Rhodes of England was welcomed on 'Change, this is his first visit to the Plate, and he has formed the most favorable impression of the country. Mr. W. Anderson was enveloped in friends and much congratulated on his convalescence. Mr. F. T. Cumberbatch was also welcomed.

The sale of two leagues of land in Juarez is reported for 500,000 $ cash, and a league of land on the Sauce Corto, transferred to the purchaser.

Terrible news from the Boca to-day; the Welsh barque Mary A. Evans has capsized, and will prove a total loss. It seems that the Port Captain ordered the captain to put his vessel close up to the bank, which the captain did under protest as he foresaw the danger, the river ran down and the vessel keeled completely over, which blocks up now the whole navigation of the Boca at the Vuelta de Rocha. It is plainly evident that now that the shipping trade of the Boca has assumed such great dimensions, it should have a proper Harbor Master, to avoid a repetition of such great losses as that which we report to-day. The Captain of the barque is not to blame in the matter, since he refused to move his ship, and finally was compelled to move her by the authorities, which he did under protest.

Mr. Bullrich sold to-day two small pieces of camp; one lot, 400 squares, for 33,700 $; Mr. Cassariago buyer; and the other 400 squares for 32,900 $, Mr. Maguire buyer.

The entries for the Gold Cup in November are a splendid success. We want a regular sporting agency in town to meet the general want of good information on sporting topics—16 entries for the cup presented by Mr. Casey.

Bullrich's great prize cattle auction takes place on Sunday. The steamer Mediterranean will leave the Boca at 10 a.m. on Saturday, and free tickets can be had at Bullrich's by those who wish to attend.

Dr. Reynal O'Connor's new book on the Code of Procedure of Buenos Ayres was out to-day. It will interest lawyers and others, as it is the first of the kind published.

From the Plaza Once de Setiembre we have the following:—
154 waggons arrived with produce.
The arrivals were:—
13,000 @ of wool
2,953 bags of wheat
553 bags of maize
472 bales of hay
and much other produce.

No variation in prices of produce in general. In cow hides more interest, and hay, colza, barley and turnip maintain their prices.

The sales were:—
Wool—
1,000 @ good, 86, Chillado
500 borregas, 78, do
300 reg. borregas, 58, Novoa & Cernadas
500 @ borrega, 72, do

Alderman Recke has a motion before the Municipality to put the 'ordenanza' of 1881 in reference to Domestic Servants in full force, and it will probably be done.

The Great Eastern has been purchased by a company for a coal hulk at Gibraltar.

The 'tamberos' are thinking of raising the price of milk to seven cents the glass, in revenge for not being allowed any longer to tie the calves to the cows' tails.

Borghi-Mamó is said to have sent the shilly-shally Boito about his business, and to be about to marry an Italian gentleman and leave the lyric stage.

Although several wines or brands were condemned by the Municipality, nothing has been done to prevent their sale. A fine, at least, on the possessors of adulterated liquors would help to stop the production.

Some of the 'genus Cacus' entered a café in Calle Artes one dark night, when the moon and proprietor were both asleep, and cleared out with 20 national dollars and 15 billiard balls. It is needless to add that billiards in that locality have come to an untimely end. The visitors got off without notice.

On the 1st of April the Council of City Corporators move into their premises in the Colon Theatre building. They were formerly occupied by the Club Industrial and Academia de Bellas Artes.

The Niger postponed her sailing on Monday on account of the unsettled state of the weather. The tender took all the passengers out yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

Bakeries—we don't know how—are peculiarly subject to fires. Yesterday there was a fine blaze in the confiteria at the corner of Victoria and Santiago del Estero, but promptly extinguished on the arrival of the Bomberos. The kitchen only suffered, as it was made of wood. Nobody was hurt, and damage trifling.

The time-tables on the Western and Campana Railways have been revised and altered. All subscribers on these lines must look out for themselves and their guias.

The people in Azul are in great spirits over their water supply. They say that the water is first-rate for drinking.

The following may be taken for what it is worth:—Mr. George, the agitator, on coming out the other night from delivering one of his lectures on the equal distribution and nationalisation of property, had his pocket picked of his watch. On finding it out he made a great row, shouting, "Someone has stolen my watch!" One of his late audience, hearing him, quietly said, "No, not stolen, only nationalised!"

Tamagno is to receive 60,000 francs per month at the Colon next season, only singing ten nights in each month; and La Teodorini is to receive half what the tenor gets. A colleague gives this news, but we have a doubt as to Tamagno being paid £400 a night. It seems absurd. Patti does not get it, as a rule.

The newest fashion comes from Germany—a fan made of flowers, so that a lady can fan herself with her bouquet in a ball-room. It is a nice idea. Messrs. Eyghorn and Muller, nurserymen, of Almagro, make these fans.

An exchange says:—A Danbury young man, who left on a far western expedition was bidding his friends good-bye at the depot, when a young girl cried out—"Bring me the scalp of a Modoc, won't you?" The young man, feeling a little hurt at her indifference to his departure and the dangers he was about to encounter, sadly replied—"No, Emma, you should not look for more hair until you have paid for that you now wear."
